

Radar chaff on 2021-03-10, when there was no cloud to be seen on a perfectly blue sky for the morning race at Lake Cootharaba.

Image from Oscilmet based on Bureau of Meteorology Mt. Kanigan radar near Gympie.

Explanation see here: link.

Apparently, the US Department of Defence states: “widespread environmental, human and agricultural impacts of chaff as currently used in training are negligible and far less than those from other man-made emissions.”

Lucky us!?
